

Figure Caption: R_{eff} is the half-light radius of a galaxy measured in kiloparsecs. The half-light radius is the radius within which half of the total light emitted by the galaxy is contained. $1 \text{ parsec} = 3.086 \times 10^{13} \text{ kilometres}$. Negative R_{eff} offsets indicate smaller sizes.